

The NYC-community-district-population file shows population changes in New York City from 1970 to 2010 by Community District. Community Districts, which include multiple Neighborhood Tabulation Areas, each have a community board that deal with a range of issues for residents.

For our purposes, Community Districts show distinct areas of the city, which we can view over time in terms of population change. Here is a map of the corresponding

Record Layout

Borough – Borough of the Community District

Community District Number – Number and name of District (see above map)

Neighborhoods – The neighborhood(s) that are part of this Community District

1970 Population – Total population from the 1970 Census.

1980 Population – Total population from the 1980 Census.

1990 Population – Total population from the 1990 Census.

2000 Population – Total population from the 2000 Census.

2010 Population – Total population from the 2010 Census.

Source: Data was compiled from the New York City Planning Department's website. The Planning Department utilizes data from the Census Bureau to study demographic changes in the city.